Calgary housing market still favours the buyer

City of Calgary, December 2, 2019 – Year-to-date residential sales in the city remain just above last year’s levels due to improvements in the attached sector so far this year.

However, November sales activity eased over last year’s levels, mostly due to pullbacks in the apartment sector. Meanwhile, new listings eased enough relative to sales to cause inventories to ease and the amount of oversupply to come down slightly compared to last year’s levels.

“Achieving more stable conditions will take time. Sales activity has been settling in at lower levels and is likely being influenced by the economic conditions and uncertainty weighing on our market,” said CREB® chief economist Ann-Marie Lurie.

“While the amount of supply in the market continues to ease, the persistent oversupply continues to weigh on prices.” As of November, the citywide unadjusted benchmark price was $419,100. This is just below last month’s levels and two per cent lower than last year’s levels.

Market conditions continue to vary depending on price, location and product type. For example, prices have ranged from a year-to-date decline of nearly eight per cent for row product in the East district to a two per cent increase for semi-detached product in the North district.

Larger price declines are often caused by high supply in the new-home and resale markets relative to demand.

Detached

- Detached sales improved in November over last year’s levels, mostly due to growth in the $400,000 – 500,000 range. However, sales in November and overall activity remain low by historical standards.
- Despite some recent gains in sales activity, year-to-date sales remain comparable to last year’s levels and 20 per cent below longer-term trends. However, detached sales have improved in both the North West and South districts this year.
- Improving sales, combined with further declines in new listings, helped reduce inventories in this sector compared to levels recorded last year. However, supply levels remained elevated based on seasonal comparisons.
- Like some of the other sectors, the detached market is slowly moving toward more balanced conditions. However, it is still oversupplied, and this trend continues to weigh on prices.
- The detached unadjusted benchmark price was $481,500 in November, slightly lower than last month’s levels and two per cent below last year’s prices.

Apartment

- Apartment sales pulled back this month, causing year-to-date sales to remain comparable to last year’s levels and 21 per cent below long-term averages.
- The monthly decline in sales was mostly driven by pullbacks in the City Centre, North West and South East districts. However, on a year-to-date basis, sales activity improved in the North, West and South East districts.
- New listings rose across most districts, causing city-wide inventory gains this month. Much of the gains were a result of a rise in new-home listings filtering into the resale market. Despite the monthly shift, year-to-date new listings and inventories remain lower than last year’s levels.
- Weaker sales, combined with rising inventories, pushed November months of supply to over seven months. This is higher than last year’s levels of more than five months.
- Persistent oversupply in this sector caused prices to ease. The year-to-date benchmark price declined by more than two per cent.

Attached

- Year-to-date sales remain more than six per cent higher than last year’s levels and just below long-term averages.
- New listings eased this month compared to last year and sales improved. Inventories continue to ease from the monthly highs recorded last year. While the attached market remains oversupplied, the market continues to improve over last year’s levels.
- November semi-detached prices eased by two per cent compared to last year. The largest year-over-year declines occurred in the City Centre district.
- Row prices eased by nearly four per cent compared to last year. Annual declines ranged from more than seven per cent in the North East district to nearly two per cent in the North West and East districts.

DEFINITIONS

Benchmark Price - Represents the monthly price of the typical home based on its attributes such as size, location and number of bedrooms.

MLS® Home Price Index - Changes in home prices by comparing current price levels relative to January 2005 price level.

Absorption Rate - Refers to the ratio between the amount of sales occurring in the market relative to the amount of inventory.

Months of Supply - Refers to the ratio between inventory and sales which represents at the current pace of sales how long it would take to clear existing inventory.

Detached - A unit that is not attached to any other unit.

Semi-detached - A single dwelling built as one of a pair that share one common wall.

Row - A single dwelling attached to each other by a common wall with more than two properties in the complex.

Attached - Both row and semi-detached properties.

Apartment - A unit within a high rise or low rise condominium building with access through an interior hallway.

Total Residential - Includes detached, attached and apartment style properties.

Exclusions - Data included in this package do not include activity related to multiple-unit sales, rental, land or leased properties.
